U.S. Congressman Visits Soviet Jews, Is Quizzed, Freed

By Robert G. Kaiser

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (WP).—Soviet police took an American congressman into custody for nearly an hour tonight after telling his Soviet hosts they were looking for a criminal posing as a foreigner.

The congressman, Rep. James H. Scheuer, D., N.Y., said after the incident he was sure it was no accident, though he couldn't say for certain why he was arrested. The most likely reason, Mr. Scheuer sald, was his interest in the status of Jews in the Soviet

> Mr. Schener was having dinner tonight in the apartment of Alexander Lerner, a Soviet Jew and cyberneticist who lost hoth his joh and his Com-munist party membership when he applied for permission to emigrate to Israel. At about 8:30 p.m., the congressman reported later, two policemen appeared at Mr. Lerner's apartment and said they were looking for "a dangerous Soviet desperado in the neighborhood in the guise of a foreigner," in Mr. Schener's The police added that they would therefore have to take into custody anyone looking like a foreigner. Mr. Scheuer said he was with a group of about half a dozen Jewish

Mujibur Named Prime Minister Of Bangladesh

By Lewis M. Simons

DACCA, Jan. 12 (WP).—Moving to place himself in a position of maximum control, Sheikh Mujihur Rahman resigned as president of maximum control, Sheifh Mujihur Rahman resigned as president of Bangladesh today and was immediately eppointed prime minister. The new president, who will function largely as a figurehead, is Abn Sayeed Choudhury, a former East Pakistani Supreme Courtiustice and deputy chancellor of Dacca University. More recently, he headed the Bangledesh mission in London and led a delegation to the United Netions.

Members of the interim government, including Prime Minister Tajuddin Ahmed, were retained for posts in the new government. In eddition, former acting president Syed Nazrul Islam and Dr. Kamal Hossein were named to the cabinet. Dr. Hessein was kept prisoner with Sheikh Mujibur for nine months in West Pakistan hefore their release last week.

The lnauguration of the government followed the promulgation of a national constitution last night. The constitution calls for a parliamentary government,

In traditional black and white Bengali garb, his shoulders draped with e white shawl, Sheikh Muji-hur took the oath of office in a clow, rumbling voice, a slight smile on his lips.

The oaths were administered to the president, the prime minister and the cabinet by Chief Justice Abusadat Mohammed Sayem, who himself was sworn into office this morning by Sheikh Mujibur. An eudience of about 300 in

Dacca's Government House burst into wild applause and shouts when the announcement of Sheikh Mujibur's move was made, "These are bold steps," said a Bengali to the audience, "They have caught us by surprise."

No public ennouncement or hint of the action was made before the language tion have a. was represented. The U.S. consul general, Herbert D. Splvack, was under orders from Washington not to appear at the ceremony.

U.S. diplomats were known to be disturbed over the effect this would have on their already highly unpopular presence in Bangladesh. The U.S. absence was technically correct in terms of dlplomatic protocol since Weshington has not recognized independent Bangladesh. The cabinet is made up of members of Sheikh Mujlbur's Awami League. By choosing to be inaugurated two days after he returned to Dacca, Sheikh Mujibur cut off from power the coun-

The pilot then called in 100 ground troops of the Coldstream Guards, who battled the attackers for almost two hours and saw their fire hit three men, the spokesman said.

While the firefight raged in open ground off Iniscarn Road, another gunman opened fire on the nearby Bligh's Lane army post. Guardsmen there returned answering fire and saw the attacker fall and be dragged away by friends, the spokesman said. A mob of about 80 men then rushed the post from the Bogside, throwing nail and gelignite hombs, he said. The soldiers drove them back with volleys of CS nausea gas. Troops who searched the main

In another incident, an unidentified man was shot to death tonight in the Roman Catholic Lower Falls district of Belfast and British soldiers seized a man with a pistol in the area, an army spokesman said.

French Communists Detect Closer Paris-NATO Links

Last night, Georges Marchais, leader of the French Communist party, charged epecifically that the present government was "modifying" Gaullist policy, which had been a total withdrawal from the unified military command of the Atlantic Alliance. Mr. Marchais said that France was now participating in a number of NATO projects and charged that Mr. Pompidou had made a secret agreement with Presi-dent Nixon in the Azores regarding French participation in allied

Mr. Marchais's comments ap-peared timed to coincide with the arrival here of Joseph Luns, the NATO secretary-general, who is on a tour of alliance members.

Luns Meets Pompidou

Mr. Luns met with Mr. Pompidou for an hour today and tomorrow will meet with Defense Minister Michel Debre. Leaving the Eiysée this afternoon, Mr. Luns told reporters, "I do not think there has been a change in French policy regarding NATO."

It seemed clear that even if Mr. Marchais's charges were true, they would not be admitted either by the Elysée Palace or by the NATO secretary-general. Observers here were quick to remember that the French dec'ded against participation in a new NATO communications system a year ago when word leaked out of their imminent participation.

French ties to NATO are an extremely sensitive subject here both because Mr. Pompidou would not like to offend the Soviet They now occupy hamlets south Union by reversing this canon of Gaullism, and because it would win him no friends among the lingering Gaullist orthodox in France. But despite this, it is As a result of the loss of Krek, 3,000 Cambodian families have clear that Mr. Pompidou, in his manner, has improved French relations with NATO.

Mr. Isnard said that under De Gaulle the French Army began again to participate in some NATO military maneuvers, and that even under De Gaulle the French military exchanged technical and communications information with NATO and that French liaison officers remained attached to NATO commands, at least after

He also pointed out that it was under De Gaulle and following the Prague invasion that the French military doctrine known as "all horizons" was quietly dropped and that a strategy similar to NATO's "flexible response" was adopted that could be coordinated with NATO policy.

The Communist party leader's allegation that France was participating, along with seven NATO countries, in the construction in submarine, to be used for under-sea tracking, was confirmed by Mr. Isnard.

The two men also agreed that France had indeed decided 10 days ago to increase its defense budget for 1973 by 8 percent,

High Court Case Points Up Role 2 Justices May Play

By John P. MacKenzie

-The Supreme Court ruled yesterday that trial judges may not stiffen a defendant's punishment on the basis of prior felony convictions that were obtained not when the accused was represented by counsel.

In a 5-to-2 decision, court called on a federal district judge to reconsider the maximum 25-year term he gave convicted bank robber Forrest S. Tucker in 1953 after inquiring about a criminal record that included invalid convictions.

The ruling was denounced by dissenting Justice Harry A. Biackmun, joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, as a fine and acceptable merely exposition of abstract law" hnt unrealistic because it was un-likely to affect the trial judge. In reply, Justice Potter Stewart said it was "callous" for the dissenters to assume, now that it was clear that two of Tucker's rior convictions were invalid, "that the trial judge will upon reconsideration undoubtedly impose the same sentence."

Justice Stewart's sharp split with Justice Burger and Justice Blackmun emphasized the "swing" role that has been

But their votes would not have changed the result even if they had lined up Justice Burger and Justice Blackmun, fellow ap-pointees of President Nixon.

Yesterday's split did not indicate that either Justice Stewart or Justice Whits was prepared to join regularly with Justices Douglas, Brennan and Marshall, the survivors of the "Warren court" majority. But it did signal a continuing commitment to decisions already reached by unanimous votes.

Justice. Stewart, said a new sentence for Tucker was the only way to prevent "erosion" of the principle, established by a unanimous court in 1963, that a felony defendant is entitled to legal counsel even if he cannot

Loved Throughout the World

"But today, all sections of our great country sing 'Dixie,' termed one of the most rollicking of our national songs, known and loved throughout the world."

President Abraham Lincoln, the court noted, used the tune as a campaign song and asked the Marine Band to play it at the White House. "On this record," the court said in a unanimous decision, "we cannot say that the tune 'Dixie' constitutes a badge of slavery or that the playing of the tune under the facts as presented constitute officially sanctioned racial abuse. "Such a ruling would lead to the prohibition of the playing of our most famous tunes," the court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (WP). -The Pentagon is preparing to ask Congress for up to $300 mil-lion extra in its current budget to speed work now on two big new strategic projects—one to bolster future nuclear deterrent forces and the other to enable the President to control them better in a crisis. U.S. Agency Sees 88,900 Bridges As Very Deficient

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UPI).

There are more than 88,900 "critically deficient" highway bridges in the United States, including several long-span bridges which could cause a heavy loss of life if they collapsed, a government report says.

The Federal Highway Administration made the preliminary estimate in a report to Con-gress; but it said limited funds will allow it to replace only 50 of the most hazardous bridges this year—a move which will use up half of its $250-million au-thorization for bridge replacements.

According to the agency, there are approximately 563,500 bridges the United States. 88,900 are considered critically delicient, And an estimated 24,000 of these deficient bridges are on the federal-aid highway system," the report said.
The report also said that out of the 563,500 bridges more than 400,000 were built before 1935. South Asian Irony

The many disastrous aspects of President Nixon's policies in the Indian-Pakistani conflict have masked the main irony disclosed by the Anderson Papers. It is that the Nixon-Kissinger approach, favoring Pakistan over India, helped bring about precisely what it was their chief objective to forestall: a Soviet victory and a major increase in Soviet influence in the subcontinent and the Indian Ocean.

Until columnist Jack Anderson published the secret minutes of White House meetings, observers could only guess at the rationale behind Mr. Nixon's decision to abandon a quarter-century of American impartiality in the subcontinent's feud. But the minutes show Mr. Kissinger's overriding concern from the heginning of hostilities that Soviet military aid and Soviet vetoes in the United Nations would enable India to destroy its chief adversary-and the balance of power on the subcontinent-by attacking and dismembering West Pakistan once East Pakistan had been conquered. Strictly in terms of great power rivalry, Pakistan's supporters the United States and China-would be the losers, while the Soviet Union as India's backer would emerge predominant in the

Other top administration officials, however, expressed doubts about the Kissinger thesis that India was planning with Soviet support to attack West Pakistan, Ambassador Keating in New Delhi urged the White House to favor India, which not only was the inevitable victor but had the better moral case. This course would have avoided leaving India with Moscow as its only backer, but Mr. Keating's advice was ignored, if indeed it ever reached the cloistered President.

Mr. Nixon's isolation from the first-hand advice and argument of the government's own experts is one of the striking revelations

Sen. Hubert Humphrey has a long history of government service, a long memory and apparently a limitless supply of determination and hope. In formally confirming his candidacy for President, the former vice-president conveyed not just an eagerness to run but also a belief in something just this side of political predestination. It was, Sen.

Humphrey observed, only on his second try for mayor of Minneapolis, his second try for the vice-presidential nomination and his second try for the presidential nomination

that he had achieved each of these goals.

Now he was aiming for a second try at the presidency, and he left little doubt as to how he thought that would turn out. Although no quarter was given either Richard Nixon or his record, Mr. Nixon's model came to mind

in the senator's plain intention to capitalize on his past defeats, to give them some special, larger meaning in relation to himself of the Anderson transcripts. Though incomplete and therefore perhaps not revealing the entire story, they do show Mr. Kissinger as an all-powerful intermediary handing down presidential orders and discouraging doubting questions even about minor tactics. A chief executive who fails to expose himself to the fullest information, free debate and the challenges of others to his prejudices can hardly he protected from blunders hy even the most brilliant White House staffs.

Not only is it improbable that the Kissinger-Nixon analysis was correct. The special irony was that their acquiescence over eight months in President Yahya Khan's bloody repression of East Pakistan helped thrust India into Russia's arms and create the danger of the very war Mr. Nixon was trying to avoid. CIA director Helms told one White House meeting that Moscow's "major policy switch" to support Indian military action did not occur until "just prior to Chinese emergence into the UN scene" in

As early as mid-April, Ambassador Keating in New Delhi argued that open American pressure on President Yahya Khan for a political settlement-rather than the cautious, secret persuasion that failed-would better fit the realities of Pakistan's deteriorstion, India's predominance and Bangladesh's emergence. "We should be guided by the new power realities in South Asia which, fortunately, in the present case, largely parallel the moral realities as well," he reportedly cabled Washington.

It was by ignoring the moral realities, misjudging the power realities, and failing to heed-or to be informed of-the political realities that Mr. Nixon put the United States on the slippery slope to its present predicament in South Asia.

Apparently Sen. Humphrey shows well in the polls, and apparently, too, he has mobiliz-

the Democratic party permits its campaign

among the first led to the stake. He may as he recently indicated, attempt to frame

the issue in the context of his Salt Lake

WASHINGTON -- Ever since the informed man here is that the Indian-Pakistani war, there has been considerable doubt here about the wisdom of President Nixon's military strategy in backing Pakistan, but there should be little doubt about the domestie political strategy he had in mind when he sided with Pakistan and China against India and the So-

He wants to be in a position to campaign for re-election on the proposition that he is the man who reduced the American expeditionary force in Vietnam from 550,000 to 40,000, whe brought China out of isolation and established a line of communication to a quarter of the human race, who defused the Berlin problem, and began the process of negotiating the control of strategic nuclear weapons. Nobody understands the potential power of this argument as well as his Democratic opponents.

The Nixon "tilt"-to use the latest White Rouse jargon—is not toward Pakistan but toward Peking. The "China opening" is the key to his bid for re-election as "a man of peace," and according to those who think they understand his diplomacy in the Indian-Pakistani crisis, he was determined not to oppose Pakistan and risk the possibility that China would call off his Peb. 21 trip

Politics Prevail

Nobody in authority here will admit it publicly, but privately officials concede that there was conflict between Nixon's world military etrategy and his demestic campaign strategy, and the considerations ef presidential politics prevailed

In terms of the world strategic struggle for bases, allies, and controi of the seas, there was a powerful case to be made fer Washington backing India. Aside from the obvious point that India is the most populous democracy in the world, and Pakistan a weak dictatorship, India dominates the sea routes between Japan and the oil fields of the Middle East, which are vital to Japan's spectacular economy and which, on present official calculations here, will be supplying between 30 and 35 percent of U.S. petroleum products by 1980. Nobody knows this better than the Soviet Union. Moscow learned in the Cuban missue crisis that it could not bring its influence to bear all over the world without a vastly expanded navy, and has been building its naval power ever since. For example, Moscow now has ever 200 attack submarines to 94 for the United States, and while we still have more nuclear subs than the Soviet Union, the official estimate in Washington is that, by 1973, Russis will have more nuclear submarines than the total number of nuclear and diesel-powered subs in the U.S. Navy.

Long before the Indian-Paki-stani war, the Soviet Union had built a naval base for India at Visanhapatnam on the Bay of Bengal, and one of the military arguments in Washington for avoiding an open break with India was that India was obviously going to win with the military and diplomatic aid of Russia which would then be seeking access to the neval base at Visanhapstnam, or falling that, offering much needed aid to Bangladesh in return for military facilities at Chittagong, the new nation's port, also on the Bay of Bengal

Considerations

No doubt there were many considerations in the President's decision to back Pakistan. Nothing is ever quite so simple as a choice between a good military strategy and a good presi-dential campaign strategy. The President had personal ties to the Pakistani leaders and to the leaders of the other Muslim countries, which happen to control much of the oil of the Middle East, and while he understood the pressure of the Bangladesh refurees on India, he did not think this justified India's open aggression across the Pakistani borders. Nevertheless, with all the different pressures of military strategy and political campaign strategy tugging him in opposite directions, the belief of well"with deep concern." and the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, Nobuhiko Ushiba, warning that Nixon's trip might be "the beginning of a process of unraveling our (U.S.-Japanese mutual security in the Far East." These fears, however, though natural, are probably groundless phere of conciliation, and through it, the basis for his own re-

It is silly to accuse him of acting against India because he was irritated by Prime Minister Gandhi or grateful to the Pakistani government for alipping Henry Kissinger into China, He has much larger ebjectives in view. He doesn't want to enhance Soviet naval and air power agross the off routes to Japan, or increase new problems with his allies in Moscow's ability to blocksde U.S. energy supplies at the other end of the world, but these are longrange considerations.

Re-election is much closer at hand and the China trip will look President Chung Hee Park of good ou satellite television from South Korea saying that he will the Forbidden. City even if it watch the Nixon Peking visit solves nothing at all. View From Moscow macy. Soviet policy-makers must regard their country's international position with a strained combination of satisfaction and discomfort. They can point to major accomplishments, no doubt with pleasure. They can also find numerous reasons to worry about the future.

The Indo-Pakistani war brought 1971 to a triumphant close for the Soviet Union, though at some cost. For once Moscow backed a winner, simultaneously humiliating the Chinese and embarrassing the Americans. As a result of the war, the Russians apparently gained a stronger footheld in South Asia, and a new intimacy with the world's second largest nation.

The cost of all this was small. at least in the short term. Moscow paid with the embarrassment caused by its aggressively pro-Indian (and thus isolated) position at the UN during the war.

Success in Europe

Soviet policy in Europe also bore sweet fruit during 1971, though perhaps less than was hoped for. Moscow reached a Berlin agreement with the Western powers which hardly altered the status quo. This should make possible final ratification of the 1970 Soviet nonaggression treaty with West Germany, the basic element of Moscow's elaborate effort to ratify the existing political map of Europe.

According to Soviet plan, that map should be finally ratified at a European security conference, once anticipated for 1972, now more likely in 1973. But European diplomats agree that the conference will take place, and that it will give the Russians what they want, including general recognition of East Germany.

The Soviet leaders have also had the satisfaction of watching a contest for leadership and subequent purge in China, now their principal adversary. (Other goings-on in Peking were less comforting.) The Middle East situation got ne worse, if it got no better. Survival of the Allende regime in Chile (which Moscow treated with extreme care until December; when a high-level Soviet delegation visited Santiago) must have provided

MOSCOW.—At the beginning of agreement here and in Washing this year of intense diploton, the Soviet Union achieves goal of at least 20 years' stand ing: strategic perity with the United States. Moscow's military power may still be slightly less imposing and considerably less mobile than Washington's but in strategic nuclear terms, the ter seem roughly equal for the first

On the discomfiting side of this diplomatic ledger, relation Ohina must coms that with After the shouting matches he-tween Soviet and Chinese delagates at the UN in December and subsequent propagands trades from both countries, it appeared that Moscow and Peking were frozen into a veritable cold war.

1949 Viewpoint

From Moscow the flavor of this relationship is reminiscent of the American attitude toward the Soviet Union in about 1949: conplete hostility, a willingness to ascribe wild irrationality to the other side, and dark pessimism about the future. (The Americans may have been right in 1949. of course, and the Soviets could be right now.)

Anxiety about China was compounded in July when President Nixon announced his intention to visit Peking. By nature pro-foundly suspicious, the Russians tended to ascribe hostile motives to both Mr. Nixon and the Chinese. It may sound silly out-side this country, but many Soviet leaders do fear a Sino-American compact directed against the Soviet Union.

Sophisticated people here who do not subscribe to such conspiracy theories nevertheless join in suspecting Mr. Nixon's inten-tions. "If he is trying to scare us by dealing with Peking," one said recently, "it won't work Mi-Nixon cannot persuade us to do anything which we do not believe is in our own interest."

By all outward indicationsand these are never the whole story in Moscow-the Sovie Union is genuinely eager to exploit Mr. Nixon's offer of "an era negotiations." Soviet interests. of course, are not always identical to America's but officials here insist that they are anxious to control the arms race with the United States. Preliminary agreements at the SALT talks provide some evidence that this is true.

But there is obvious fear here that Mr. Nixon's era of negotia tions is meant to be conducted from a "position of strength" as the Russians say in their con-tinually harsh anti-American pro-paganda. "Why, on the eye of a summit conference, is Nixon pursuing policies of confrontation by supporting Yahya Khan and bombing North Victoam?" one Russian asked recently. Mr. Nixon seems to be a source of discomfort in the Kremlin Another disquieting development for Moscow is the expansion of the European Econom Community. The prospect of a bigger and more unified Common Market contradicts Soviet plans for Europe. When the new leader of the West German Christian Democratic Union Rainer Barzel, was in Moscow last month, Premier Alexel I. Kosygin reportedly used harsh lan-guage to mock the notion that the Soviet Union would ever work through EEC bureaucrats in Brussels to do husiness with member nations of the commu nity. Japan Courted

Japan is another source anxiety here. The Soviets are strong the Japanese, but with out choices success. Japanese out choices success. businessmen have not jumped at the chance te trade more with the Soviet Union. On the contrary, reports from Tokyo indicate they are now more interested in trade with China. For Moscow, a Sino-Japanese axis would be as grave a development would be as grave a development of the factors as any plot between washington of the factors as any plot between washington. George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey will be down in Flor-ida, testing their variants of "populism" in a state where that kind of politics worked well in and Peking.

Finally there must be so concern here about the eventual costs of the Russians' expanding commitments, new and old, es pecially in India and Bangis-

It was relatively easy to cheer India on to victory in December. It will be both difficult and expensive to sustain the benefits of victory. China will certainly be competing for influence in Ban gladesh. Moscow may find it has a costly new ally in Dacca-one which Moscow alone must keep afloat

Al Goodman

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (NYT).-Al Goodman, 81, who waved his baton for many stars of the stage and radio in the 1920s and 1930s, died Monday.

When young, Mr. Goodman played the piano and plugged songs for a music publisher before being asked by Earl Carroll in 1916 to collaborate on a show. They wrote the score and book for "So Long Letty," which became a smash hit.

Mr. Goodman liked to tell about how Joison started using "Mammy" in his songs. "That was in 1919 or 1920," the arranger once recalled. "Joison was at his peak, bot the music of 'Rock-s-bye Your Baby" didn't seem to give him a chance. It was too loud because I was getting everything I could out of it and he couldn't rise above it.

"Suddenly, Joison stopped short and yelled, Mammy?—I can hear every bit of the Old Southland in that music. Why should I sing to it?" And that, the story goes, is how Jolson's "Mammy" was born. Mr. Goodman was soon in demand for conducting chores, and he waved the baton for "Vanities," "Scandals," "Rio Rifa," "Strike Me Pink," "Follow Thru," "Sons O'Guns' and "The Cat and the Fiddle," among other shows. In 1933, Mr. Goodman entered radio and was heard on "Show Boat," the "Hit Parade," the Fred Allen show and others.

Tribe in South-West Africa Stirs Against Johannesburg

Africa, Jan. 12 (AP).—Displaying almost unprecedented resistance, the powerful Ovambo tribe is heading for a showdown with the white rulers of South-West

The Ovambo problem is simple: they don't like the terms under which they must labor in white commerce and industry; more than 13,000 of them have stopped work in a series of strikes which began in mid-December and spread across the territory.

Authorities shipped more than 12,000 of them back to churchmouse-poor Ovamboland, Police reinforcements have been sent there from South Africa to help maintain order. There have been no serious incidents. Officials blame the unrest on agitators." Meanwhile, production is slowing in the key mining industry. In Windhock, the capital, white students collect garbage and handle menial chores on the railroad. Factory output is curtailed, municipal services crippled and hotels and restaurants are hampered. Servantless white housewives are tackling domestic

Confident Talk

White spokesmen talk confidently of replacing recalcitrant Ovambos with more doclle labor from the Damara, Kavango, He-rero, and Nama tribes. This optimism seems misplaced.

Ovembos make up almost half of South-West Africa'e total popon of 750,000. They probably the most skilled and sophisticated of available African workers and comprise 30,000 of the territory's labor force

The tribal reservation of Ovamboland sprawls along the northem frontier with Portuguese Angola. It is strictly off limits to unauthorized visitors.

'Suitable' or 'Slavery'

The contract labor system, mich is at the center of the dispute, goes back half a century. Local white authorities describe it as "suitable" and "benefiting." But it has been called "slavery" in the United Nations.

Ovambos cannot leave their bleak homeland except under work contracts usually lasting 18 months. Arrangements are made by the South-West African Native Labor Association (SWANLA), formed in 1943 to save employers the trouble of recruiting. Employers only have to complete an order form which specifies the type of worker wanted: A, B, C, or Piccanin, a local label for black juveniles, and pay a 233 fee.

Ovambo applicants are medically checked, X-rayed and graded for the type of work SWANLA considers suitable. When an Ovambo is hired, an Okangolo, or mark of engage-

No Guarantee

Ovambos contend that they get no guarantee that the "master's" part of the contract will be fulfilled. Some white farmers openly advocate holding of wages until the contract is completed.

Many tribesmen dtalike their jobs, but are unable to switch to

The work stoppage was placed some perspective when white schoolboys who filled in for striking Ovambos on the rallroad were paid 109 rands ($114.97) a month, which was described as the standard wage for white laborers. White students who helped on the Windhoek garbage trucks received 2 rands ($2.86) a

Reports coming from Ovamboland itself are sketchy, but there are reliable indications that the strike has caused an upsurge of political interest.

Major Concern

A major concern there is the selection this month of a new chief councilor for the tribal legislature at Ondangwa.

Chief Ushons Shiimi, criticized by many younger Ovambos as a spineless front man who allowed himself to be used by white authorities, died in a car crash last November

There are reports that many feel the chief should be elected and not appointed by the South African envernment through the tame Ovambo Executive Council. Philipus Kaluvi, headman of the Ukwanyama clan, is favored to become chief. He was worked

ATHENS, Jan. 12 (Reuters).-Eight Greeks face court-martial here beginning Jan. 20 charged with the manufacture and placing of bombs in Athens, the prosecutor of the Athens military judiciary said here today.

According to legislation passed by the army-backed regime the maximum penalty is life imprisonment. The prosecutor, Panayotis Nikolodimos, said at a press con-ference that the group was responsible for a series of explosions in Athens from September, 1969, to May, 1971, when they were arrested. The group plant-ed time bombs in various parts in central Athens, he alleged. The prosecutor said the leader of the group, Icannis Valirakis, 28, made several trips abroad to contact the leaders of the Panhellenic Liberation Movement founded by Andreas Papandreou exiled former minister and son of the late George Papandreou, who was head of the powerful Center Union party and the last elected premier of Greece. He also charged that Mr. Valirakis had set up a workshop in Stockholm for the manufacture of bombs that were smnggled Into Greece by persons with forged passports.

He added that Mr. Valirakis and Ioannis Kyriazis, another defendant, went to Rome in 1969 and 1970 to be trained in the use of explosive devices. Security police are also hold-

Cardin, Couture, Creation

By Hebe Dorsey

DARIS, Jan. 12 (IHT).—In what looks like a rash gesture, Pierre Cardin has fired all the salesgirls in his three women's boutiques on the Faubourg Saint-Honoré.

"But," he said yesterday, "this is just a technicality. I am leasing the boutiques so I had to deliver a clear setup. I hope the new management will hire the girls back but I could hardly make the decision on its behalf," Mr. Cardin quashed the rumor that he was taking such a step because the expenses involved in his design center Espace-Cardin had him in deep financial trouble.

"Nonsense," he said. Mr. Cardin said that he will still own his nine boutiques, scattered all over Europe, hut "I'm tired of petty details," be said. "I had good time huilding up the boutiques hut now I'm bored with selling dresses." He said that he refused to have all his time taken up hy administrative chores. "I'm beyond that stage," he said. "From now on, I want to devote all my time to creation."

In his barely completed Espace-Cardin (which reportedly cost him 5 million francs) Cardin was proudly sitting behind his latest creation: a sculpture-like, V-shaped deak of gleaming plastic and steel, which is loaded with electronic gadgets.

"I've sold five of them so far." Cardin said, "at 30,000 francs apiece. I need to sell 20 before I can lower the price to a more reasonable level."

The Espace-Cardin is filled with Cardin-designed objects: womb-like foam-rubber, stools that look like giant pehbles, telephones nestled in clear plastic spheres and ashtrays that sprout as giant tulips.

Cardin spends a lot of time in his design center which includes a theater, a restaurant, a bar, an art gallery and a movie house. In upkeep alone, the venture is said to cost him 2.5 million francs a year. An ex-pensive toy. But besides the joy creating a whole new world, Mr. Cardin loves being a patron of the arts and a theater producer. "Maya Plisetskaya is going to dance here next spring," he said happily, "and tomorrow, I'm having the opening show of the work of a new young painter,

Jean Moulin." In 1973, Mr. Cardin will open second design center, Pierre

Cardin International in Tokyo. It will have eight floors. All that sounds very far from fashion and maybe it is. But Mr. Cardin maintains he is going on with couture although he is changing his schedule. The next important couture collection will be in April, at the same time of the ready-to-wear salon. Despite an earlier report that he would make a small couture collection for private clients in early February, Mr. Cardin said that he wouldn't.

He said that his workrooms being reorganized were operate on a more modern basis. Haute couture is dead," he said emphatically, "and there is no sense trying to pretend it isn't."

In saying so, Mr. Cardin may be contradicting himself, but he is nailing the problem down. Even if conture is not dead, its working methods are. One way

Mrs. Cormier can remember an especially bleak moment in 1965 when she despairingly told a friend that her husband would be gone for eight years. "Oh ne, Elleen," the friend said, "they'll never let it last that long."

Now she hopes her prediction was correct. It will mean I only have a year to go," she said. But for her own emotional stability and that of her children, she has learned to guard against her hopes and to live her life as if no change could be expected soon.

She is in her seventh year as librarian at an elementary school in nearby Islip Tarrace. It was her husband's idea, the said, that she return to teaching during his absence.

Now she thinks It was an inspired idea, for she found salvation of a kind in the fact that there was some place she had to go the Monday morning after she received her first talegram from the Pentagon saying he was missing in action.

A year after he was captured she went back to school to earn a master's degree. The next year she bought a house. Only later did she become active in organized activities on behalf of the

And sometimes it cost nothing but a little thought (no-smoking sections, for example).

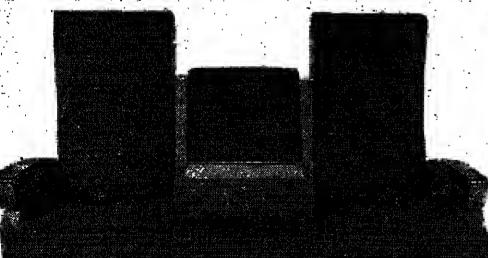

Next time you fly to America, ask your travel agent to book you a TWA Ambassador flight.

On a 707 or 747.

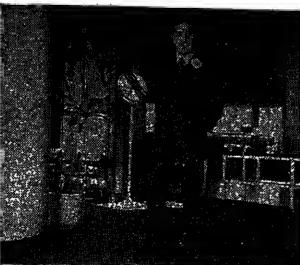

If it isn't considerably better than the service other airlines offer you, fly back with one of them.

They all charge the same as TWA's

Spending Advanced To First Six Months

PARIS, Jan. 12 (IHT).-France acted today to spur its singuish economy and curb rising unemployment by speeding up and increasing its intended spending

Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing reported that during the first six months of the year the government would inject 45 billion france more then it had planned into the economy—bunching ifs spending in the first half. However, for all of 1972, the increase over intended spending will be 2.2 billion

The boost, in the form of an easing of the value-added tax and accelerated public spending. is intended t, keep the economy on the government's target. Mr. Giscard d'Estaing said he does not expect any "great change" in his earlier forecast for a 5.2 percent rise in the nation's gross national product this year.

Total government spending, including that of state-run enterprises, will amount to 10.65 bil-tion france during the first six months, up from 6.15 billion provided in the 1972 budget, and 5.54 billion in the like 1971 period, the minister told a news

Accelerated government spending involves primarily public works and civil engineering projects and the building of an additional 20,000 apartments for low-income families. This adds up to about 1.5 billion francs. State-run enterprises will speed up their investment programs by shout 2 million francs. The remaining 1 billion francs will come through an easing of the value-added tax.

Bank Warns On New Yen Speculation

TOKYO, Jan. 12 (Reuters) Pressure could build up for another revaluation of the yen in a year or two, Mitsubishi Benk warned today.

The bank predicted Japan will record another large trade surplus of $7.89 billion in the fiscal year beginning April 1, compared with an estimated $7.65 billion in the current fiscal year. This will reflect the fact that exports will continue to rise while imports will fail to advance as sharply because of the conthrued domestic recession.

Even supposing that invisible trade (insurance, freight costs) and capital accounts produce sizable deficits, the overall bal-ance-of-payments surplus will reach $3.33 billion compared with an estimated $6.02 billion in the 1971 financial year, the bank

Such a situation could give the impression abroad that the Japsnese economy has felt little impact from the 16.88 percent revaluation of the yen against the dollar last mouth, it said.

If things are allowed to take their natural course, moves are likely to revive abroad to restrict imports of Japanese goods and it is possible in a year or two Japan may be asked to revalue the yen again, it said.

To evoid such a situation Japan needs to push ahead with plans to free imports, cut import tariffs, and effect drastic relaxation of exchange control to facititate capital exports, as well as stimulating the national economy into recovery, Mitsubishi

Gisto makes and distributes parmacentical preparations. In the half-year ended Dec. 31. rt had net profit of £8.05 million, up from £5.61 million.

Thorn Profits Up 31% In Latest Half Year

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP-DJ) .--Thorn Electrical Industries reported today a 31 percent gain in net profit for the half-year ended Sept. 30. Profits rose to £11.25 million from £8.64 million in the year-. earlier period.

The company said that consumer durable goods, particularly color television sets, continue to account for most of the increase in profits.

The British Radio Equipment and Manufacturers' Association reported yesterday that total deliveries of color TV sets to British retailers and rental outlets in November rose to 115,000 sets, up from 105,000 in October and 62,000 in November 1970.

But Beecham's Offer Still Open

Beecham Group manufactures and sells tolletries, cosmetics, home remedies, food and drink products, pharmacentical and veterinary products, as well as animal feedstuffs. Beecham net in the six months ended Sept. was £9.59 million, up from £3.55 million

Boots and Glaxo said merger studies have been in progress for some time. Terms of the offer

Stock for every five Glazo shares. The stock would be convertible into Boots between 1975-25 at 2 price of 285 pence per share. Boots is also offering 40 pence for every preferred Glazo share -the same as Beetham offered. If the Boots bid wins, Glavo shareholders would account for 41 percent of the combined company's equity, rising to around 45 percent upon conversion of the loan stock As the Monopolles Commission did not object to the Beecham hid. Boots does not expect the government to oppose its Did.

Shell Bond Priced Over Par After Others Slice Coupons

PARIS, Jan 12 (IET).—A market at 7 1/2 percent with pricompybrook of competitive intering at 99. Here, investors put up est rate cuts on the coupons of bonds on offer in the Eurobond market culminated today in the first dollar bond to be priced over per.

The $70-million issue from Shell International, the key issue because of the borrower's triple-A credit rating, was priced at 100 1/2. This means for every $1,000 facevalued bond, investors will have to pay $1,005.

This pricing cuts the yield to investors on a current basis to 7.25 percent and to 7.21 percent if held to the full 15-year maturity. Pricing bonds over per is musual in this market, in large part because investors are not accustomed to it.

Denmark Cuts Again

The main impetus behind the innovation was the continuing series of cuts on indicated coupons for lesser-credit-rated borrowers. The Kingdom of Denmark, which first announced an offering of $25 million at 8 percent and later changed it to $30 million at 7 3/4 percent, came to ing at 99. Here, investors put up $990 for each $1,000 bond, meaning a yield to its 15-year maturity of 7.6 percent

Bankers described the ever-changing conditions of the Denmerk bond as "scandalous" and "not warranted" by market conditions. The $20 million loan from

cut in indicated coupon to 7 1/2 from 7 3/4 percent kicked off the present round of rate cuts, was priced today at 99 1/4. Meanwhile, British Insulated Callender's Cables has announced it is raising its issue to $20 million from the originally planned $15 million, and lowering the coupon to 7 3/4 from 8 percent first an-

Litton Industries, which last Friday launched a $25 million issue with an expected 8 percent coupon, has "temporarily" with-drawn the offering. Lehman Bros. manager of the issue, said the move had "nothing to do with conditions on the Europond market, but was taken for internal

Devaluation Bill Could Feed Protectionism

By Leonard Silk

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (NYT).-Flying back to Washington from San Clemente with the President this week, Treasury Secretary John B. Con-nally told newsmen that legislation to devalue the dollar to $38 an ounce of gold from $35 would be submitted to Congress during the first week of February.

Will this be the occasion for a big protection-ist demonstration in the Congress? Earlier, when the administration was holding out against a cevaluation, it used to warn foreigners not to press because Congress would turn a request into a Christmas tree of protectionism.

Has that argument lost its validity-assuming that it had some in the first place and will Congress vote the dollar down without trying to put a hook into foreign exporters, U.S. importers and multinational U.S. corporations that ship capital abroad?

Asked for Trouble

In a sense, the administration itself has asked for trouble by tying the issue of trade barriers and concessions to the issue of dollar devaluation. In the monetary agreement negotiated last month, Mr. Connally insisted on inserting a pro-vision that the President would not sak Congress to devalue the dollar in terms of gold until he had trade concessions that would withstand congressional "scrutiny."

Presumably, Congress will now scrutinize, and the administration will seek to convince it that what it has got in trade concessions from the Common Market and Jepan is guite enough to justify the devaluation.

Of course, this is a sort of characte, because the administration wanted the devaluation—and the biggest one that foreigners would stand still for—as a means of reducing the price of U.S. exports and increasing the price of imports to help the U.S. balance of payments.

There is not much congressional naivete or ignorance on that score. Virtually no objection has been raised in Congress to the devaluation

Protectionistr Ready But the devaluation bill could still run into heavy fire on the Senate and House floors from Indeed, Sen. Vance Hartke, D., Ind., and Rep. James A. Burke, D., Mass, have jointly intro-duced trade bills that make the Smoot-Hawley Act of 1930 look as if it might have been written by Adam Smith.

The Hartke-Burke bill would literally put quantitative quota restraints on everything. calls for the total quantity of imported goods annual quantity entering the United States during the calendar years 1965 to 1969. It would be up to a new three-man commission to determine what that average annual quantity from 1965 to 1969 was.

Would Mean Big Cuts

Obviously, since the volume of imports has been growing steadily, this would mean huge cutbacks in total imports.

But import quotas are only the beginning. The Hartke-Burke bill provides some powerful disincentives to foreign investment by U.S. com-

It strikes at multipational corporations controlled by Americans by requiring that they include in their gross income their "pro rata share of the corporation's earnings and profits"—whether dividends have been distributed or not. The bill would also repeal the fureign tax credit allewed corporations and thus install double taxation of foreign earnings. New Power to President

The bill would give the President the power to prohibit any person under the jurisdiction of. the United States from engaging in any transaction involving a direct or indirect transfer of capital abroad if the President decided that such a transfer "would result in a net decrease in employment in the United States."

Does the bill have a chance?

It has very strong AFI-CIO backing. Top officials of the labor federation from George Meany down have made clear their intention to continue to give its backers their political support and contributions. The United Auto Workers and the Teamsters have as yet taken no position on it.

Obviously, many industries seeking protection from what they regard as destructive foreign competition will back it.

Profit-Taking Erodes NYSE Gains By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (NYT) .-Total Volume Up

The winds of profit-taking buffeted the New York Stock Exchange today and sent prices lower. Glamour issues, which had spearheaded the recent sivance, were clipped.

Ahead by more than 5 in late morning activity, the Dow Jones industrial average alipped steadthy thereafter to finish at 910.82 for a 1.28 loss.

With block trading on the uplion shares from yesterday's 17.97 Crown Cark & Seal, with a block of 488,000 shares appearing at the close, finished at 19, down 5/8 to rank as the volume leader. American Telephone, the second most active issue, rose to 47 1/2 after selling as high 25 47 7/8.

Some analysis currently view the market as possibly on the threshold of consolidation. Filor, Bulland & Smyth, for example, stated: While our long-term out-look remains definitely bullish, we are now seeing negative tech nical signals indicating at least a short-term correction, and possibly one of intermediate duration.

Levitz Furniture fell 2 to 146 3,4 after selling at a record 151 1/4. Federal National Mortgage declined 2 5/8 to 185 1/8. Argus Research recommended that profits be taken in aggressive accounts."

Bausch & Lomb tumbled 5 7/8 to 166 1/2. Natomas dropped 3 5/8 to 62 5/8 and Winnebago slipped 7/8 to 54 5/8, But IBM, which realigned its data process ing group, gained 1 1/4 to 342 1/4 after trading as high as 347 1/2. The biggest point loser on the active list was Ampex, down 2 7/8

SEC Expected to Extend Negotiated Rates on Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (WP),-The Securities & Exchange Commission has virtually decided that negotiated or "competitive" com-mission rates should be extended to more large stock market transactions.

There have been recurring reports in Wall Street that the SEC would lower the break point to $400,000 or even lower.

Needbarn said that no decision on the rate structure has been made because "we feel committed to a full one-year test of the $500,000 level."

Perhaps alone among European national groups, the Hungarians have their own club in New York. Doyen among the members is Richard Toszeghy, who played against Culbertson four decades ago and last Monday celebrated his 86th birthday. The dia-gramed deal shows how he de-feated a slam contract recently. with alert defense.

After three passes South, with too many potential losers to consider an opening forcing bid, correctly opened one spade. How far North should raise spades when he has passed originally is a difficult question. . The opponents' slience is a slight in-dication that South may be short in diamonds, and that a raise to the two-level could be sufficient. However, North jumped to three spades on his dis-tributional power. This was all the encouragement South needed, and he jumped to six spades. This is a slightly inferior contract, which depends primarily on finding a two-two trump split, a 40 percent chance. The declarer can im-prove this percentage slightly by assuming that, if West drops a trump honor on the first round, it is a singleton.

West led the diamond ace and studied the dummy. South would not have jumped to slam missing two aces, so the best chance was to find East with the king or queen of spades. Accordingly a second diamond was led, and Tosseghy as East promptly ruffed with the spade queen. This uppercut was sufficient to knock out the declarer, who would have succeeded in the siam against any other defense. Notice that East would have had to make a similar play if he had held the spade king instead of the

BENJAMIN RUSH Revolutionary Gadfly

By David Freeman Hawke. The Bobbs-Merrill Company, 490 pp. $15.

Reviewed by L. H. Butterfield

WITH great good humor but with devastating effect, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes in 1860 assessed the medical career of Benjamin Rush, up to then the only American physician who had achieved an international reputa-

"Dr. Rush," Holmes wrote must have been a charming teacher, as he was an admirable man. He was observing, rather than a good observer; eminently observing, curious, even, about all manner of things. But he could not help feeling as if Nature had been a good deal shaken by the Declaration of Independence, and that American art was getting to be rather too much for her, especially as illustrated in his own practice."

Through the thousands of stu-dents he taught in his 44-year tenure in Philadelphia's medical schools, through the scores of apprentices he trained, through his letters and tracts—Holmes wrote -Rush "gave a direction to the medical mind of the country more than any other one man; perhaps he typifies it better than any other. It has clearly tended to extravagance in remedies and trust in remedies, as in everything else. How could a people which has a revolution once in four years, which has contrived the Bowieknife and the revolver, which has chewed the juice out of all the superlatives in the language in Fourth of July orations... which insists in sending out yachts and borses and boys to out-sall, out-run, out-fight and checkmate all the rest of creation; how could such a people be con-tent with any but 'heroic' prac-What wonder but that the stars and stripes wave over doses of ninety grains of sulphate of quinine, and that the American eagle screams with delight to see three drachms of calomel given at a single mouthful?"

With the important exception of his pinneering work in psychiatric theory and treatment (now re-calving perhaps more attention than at any time in the past). Rush's reputation as a medical scientist and practitioner has never recovered from Holmes's deft destruction. He left Rush, as a physician, dead. David Hawke in this new and vastly more thorough biography of Rush than any that has been produced earlier, appears to recognize this established truth. He hedges a little by saying that his book, which takes his subject only to 1790, does not emphasize "the medical side of Rush's career"-because, up to that point, almost a quarter of a century be-fore his death, Rush's "coment to medicine was more practical than passionate: it provided the income to care for his family.

His real role through this midpoint in his career, Mr. Hawke correctly perceives, was that of a "gadfly"—a term perhaps more suggestive than wholly felicitous -stirring up his fellow country. men to realize the potential of their new world and society, to complete the human drams of which the Revolutionary War (as Rush liked to say) was only the

In short, during the first half of his mature life Rush was a millenarian prophet and leader, striving to accomplish through so-cial and cultural reforms what Paine and Jefferson strove for in politics. Noah Webster in language, Peale in painting, Freneau and Barlow in literature, and a host of founders of new sects in religion. In his more extravagant moments, which were frequent, Rush was the most extravagant among all these men in an op-timistic generation. He actually believed that through sufficient exhortation, legislation and moral selfdiscipline, the American people could be converted republican machines," and voilà the millennium.

This is the pervasive and unifying theme of Mr. Hawke's book-though the theme is sometimes lost in the welter of facts on every aspect of Rush's life, from his first American ancester to his 45th year. As a model of research, this blography cannot in the be faulted. Even those closely familiar with the man and the period will find new and valuable data in it, drawn from the original sources, most particularly from the letters Rush received and the daybooks of his office. But as 12 11 11 the reader proceeds through chap-ter after chapter densely packed with details that include summaries not only of Rush's major. publications but also his newspaper communications, he may wish the author had been more selective—and organized his superabundant materials in chapters dealing sequentially with major topics, instead of fragmenting these topics through many chapters covering only a year or two

One of the cardinal factors in going at high speeds is to tuck and keep your arms close to your body, your legs straight and almost touching, and your body severely crouched so that the air is not working against you, Schaeffler says it is basically the "principles

And when I kicked the ball, I was making history. That ball going through the goal posts is a picture I'll never take out of my mind."

As recently as two seasons ago, Yepremian was unemployed in pro football. He was unwanted by the Detroit Lions, whom he had joined in 1966 after settling with his brother, Krikor, in Indiana-

"I am an Armenian," he said, "but my family moved to England because of the civil war in Cyprus and I attended an American school there. I played sandlot soccer. After the 1968 season, which he spent with the minor-league Michigan Arrows, he was released. The next year he had a sixmonth Army hitch.

"By then, the Lions had Errol Mann but their general manager, Edwin Anderson, told me I should be kicking. He asked me, Do you mind if I write letters. I was hencred. Coach Don Shule of the Delphins was the only one who replied with a positive answer. By the second game in 1970, I was activated. I have been ever since."

Clark, out earlier by Philadelphis and Pittsburgh, thought he was a fixture with the Cowboys until they imported Fritsch last summer after a European scouting tour. "I suem I let the pressure defeat me," Clark explained. "I kent my job during the presesson but rather than stopping then, Toni and I had to compete every day in practice. I couldn't relax because I knew I'd be competing the next day. It was a competitive situation that the coaches crested. Mentally, I just wore

Coaches Toil, Trouble To Brew Ski Mixture

BADGASTEIN, Austria, Jan. 12 (IHT).—Behind closed cellar doors, two United States women's coaches were stirring their mecial brew today when suddenly a voice asked. "Is the machine cooking?"

"It's going strong," said head women's coach Hank Tauber into the walkie-talkie and then he returned to mixing the soup pot over a burner. A half-hour later, head team coach Willy Schaeffler, still on the downbill course where the women would race later in the day, reported to the ski room that the temperature of the air and the snow was still about the same-minus 2 centigrade for the air, minus 6 for the snow. And Tauber and his assistan Ron Sargent, continued in the ski room with the three-part blue one-part yellow wax soup which they soon would spread on the bottoms of the akis their girls would soon use. The ritual of waxing skis takes place every day there is a race, Waxing, simply, enables a skier

"(Annemarie) Proell and (Françoise) Macchi are not winning races because their wax is better. They're better skiers," said Tauber.

"The interesting thing is that, all the other teams are doing the same thing now that we're doing here" Tauber said. Still, if one team waxes its akis, everyone else must do it as an equalizer.

Waxes are made in different consistencies—which the various colors differentiate. What wax should be used depends on the air and snow temperatures of race day. According to Tauber, "The best wax to use should have the same hardness of the snow it has to slide on. For instance, a hard, wax won't go on a soft surface—has yet to be packed.

According to the label on the wax package, air temperature has a greater influence on the type of wax to be used because "at a steadily rising air temperature the snow condition deteriorates and This morning after learning of weather conditions, none of the U.S. coaches thought that waring would greatly influence todar's

For today's race the U.S conches picked out a wax which had a range from minus three to plus three—the rightly predicted afternoon temperature.

Nepela Nearly Doubles Lead In European Figure Skating

From Wire Dispatches
GOTEBORG, Sweden, Jan. 12,
-World champion Ondrej Nepela of Czechoslovakia nearly doubled his lead in the men's competition of the European Figure Skating championships as the final three compulsory figures were completed today.

After six compulsories, the three-time European champion had 1,155,2 points and 10 ordinals to 1,112.0 and 24 for Sergei Chat-verukhin of Russia. Patrick Pera of France is in third place with 1,117.5 and 22.5. It is not expected that any of the others can make up enough ground in the free skating portion of the competition to be a threat.

Nepela is a top-rated skater in the mandatory figures, but is not as respected in the free program part, where artistic interpretation is rated along with the technical aspects. Though his lead is

In the ice dancing competition, a surprise was sprung by the brother-sister combination of Angelika and Erick Buck of West Germany, who took the lead after the compulsories. Janet Sawbridge and Peter Dalby of Britain were in third place.

The champlonships will run through Saturday with a special Sunday. The women's competition starts tomorrow. Beatrix Schuha of Austria, the defending European and World champion, is heavily favored here as many of the other top-class women skaters are from North America.

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (NYT).-The Baker Street Irregulars, who are dedicated to the proposition that Mr. Sherlock Holmes was the best and wisest man of his time, held their annual dinner the other night to celebrate the Master's 118th birthday. The usual toasts were drunk, with the usual reverence. It was a happy occasion, and yet a little sad because the Irregulars, scholars though they be, do not realise that it is a false god they serve.

Sun-blinded by hero worship, they accept the word of John H. Watson, M.D., that Holmes was "the foremos" champion of the law" in his generation, Maybe he was, but not when his activities touched upon the field of sports. Then his ethics ran second to his avarice and there was no form of skulduggery he wouldn't countenance in order to win a bet.

Rigged the Odds

It is a matter of record that when Silver Blaze won the Wessex Plate at Hampshire Heath, Holmes so rigged the odds that he got 15 to 1 on a legitimate 3-to-1 shot, and that he personally made sure the second favorite, Desborough, would get such a bad ride as to lose all chance. (Charles B. Stephens, "Silas Brown, or Who Shot Desborough's Bolt?," Baker Street Journal, Vol. II, No. 3, 1947, pp. 257-61.)

It is also common knowledge that Holmes made a killing on the Oxford-Cambridge rugby match when, after learning that Cambridge would stand no chance unless the missing right wing three-quarter, Godfrey Staunton, could be found, he temporized and procrastinated ontil the match was over and the bets on Oxford were won.

Armed with this knowledge, let us examine Holmer's encounter with Shorcombe Prince, a candidate for the Epsom Derby. Early in his account of "The Adventure

His feigned ignorance is a transparent piece of deception, for nobody in London was better versed in sports than Holmes. He was o crack boxer, fencer. pistol shot and singlestick player, with "some knowledge of baritsu, the Japanese system of wrestling." He was thoroughly informed on racing matters, as he had demonstrated earlier by rattling off details concerning the bloodlines and racing record of Silver Blaze. And, as an avid reader of the daily press, he couldn't possibly have missed the scandal when Norberton pub-licly horsewhipped the moneylender Sam

tions concerning the United Pakistan, who is now under house

A few days before hostilities broke out between India and Pakistan the President's National Security Council met at the White House. Here are the minutes of that meeting: -

"1-The CIA reported that it expected war to break out at any time in East Bengal between India and Pakistan.

"2-The President asked the council members which country they thought the United States should support.

"3-The Joint Chiefs of Staff said they could go either way. If the President wished to support India they would send the U.S. fleet to Pakistan. If, on the other hand, the President wanted to support Pakistan they would send the fleet to India. In any case, they would announce they were doing it to protect American lives.

"4-The United States Information Agency said it was prepared to charge either Pakistan or India with aggression as soon as it got the word as to which way the President wanted to tilt.

"5-The President said he was prepared to tilt, but since neither country had football teams he could not get emotionally involved.

"6-Henry Kissinger said that since the Chinese were supporting Pakistan and the Soviets were supporting India, he thought it would be a nice gesture before the President's Peking visit to come out for Pakistan.

7-The State Department objected on the grounds that India was a democracy and if the Presideni tlited towards Pakistan, the United States could lose all its influence in Asia.

"8-The President asked if there were any legal precedents for supporting either one of the countries.

"9-Dr. Kissinger said there were: Lyndon Johnson, when he was vice-president of the United States, had given his word to a camel driver in Karachi that if ever India and Pakistan got into a fight, the United States would back Pakistan.

"10-The State Department objected to this interpretation of former President Johnson's commitment. They said all Mr. Johnson had done was to give the camel driver a pickup truck, "11-Dr. Kissinger said a pick-up truck was as good as a commitment. Since it was made in the previous administration, President Nixon had no choice but to honor it because the United States' credibility was at stake. "12—The President agreed and started tilting towards Pakistan. As a matter of fact, he tilted so much be fell off his chair."

The Knoll showroom look with table by Gae Aulenti, pedestal stools by Saarinen, cactus and flowers.

The Art of Designing

PARIS, Jan. 12 (IHT).-Tomorrow, in the Musée des Arts Décoratifs wing of the Louvre, an exhibition opens of Knoll furniture—the leading name in modern interior design since 1938 when Hans Knoll opened a modest shop on East 72d Street in New York to supply fellow German emigres with furniture as contemporary as their Bauhaus buildings.

There are Knoll branches or licensees in 31 countries, and their muted, harmonious showrooms spotted with green plants are familiar throughout the world. Although the Germans, for example, require special units because they don't build closets into their houses, the line is identical for all countries: the same Saarinen chair can be found from Chicago to Moscow, where it was supplied by Knoll's Finnish licensee

One of the first American companies to be invited to exhibit at the Arts Décoratifs, Knoll has had the show splendidly mounted by Lella and Massimo Vignelli. Top executives and designers have excitedly flown over from the United States, led by Knoll International president Robert Cadwallader, who started with Knoll in his native Texas in 1955, "I sold furniture and watered the rubber plant," he says.

In Paris, Knoll opened in 1952, in a tiny shop on the Rue de l'Abbaye next to the 11th-century church of St. Germain des Prés. Yves Vidal, president of Knoll France and vicepresident of Knoll International, recalls that he used to stand outside the lighted show window at night to see passersbys' reactions. Many of them, noting the plans and flowers, thought "And when they saw the first Bertoia chair, they laughed and said look at that furniture in metal," Mr. Vidal says. "In the morning I'd know how many people had looked at the window—I'd just count the nose prints."

Today, Knoll in Paris has large showrooms on the Right and Left Banks and recently Paris-Match excitedly published a two-page color spread of a room in the Hysée Palace in which Mme. Pompidou had put-gasp!-a Saarinen pedestal table

As modern office and apartment buildings go up, the Prench have become more willing to face modern furniture, though they still stick to such customs as putting things cater-corner. This drives Knoll people crasy and they keep giving little hip thrusts to shove the furniture back into the straight, clean lines that suit it.

The great talent of Hans Knoll, says Robert Cadwallader. was as a promoter. "He had the idea of promoting designs to the architects, no one else had thought of getting architects to sell furniture." Knoll's wife, Florence, created furniture and fabrics and was the driving force. "The combination of the two made Knoll great." Mr. Cadwallader says. "She had an iron hand, she controlled everything."

Hans Knoll died in 1955. Florence Knoll retired 10 years later, and in 1967 Knoll became part of Walter E Heller International of Chicago, a vast concern with interests ranging from finance to mass feeding equipment. Knoll furniture is made in most of the countries it is sold in, though a number of advanced pieces requiring expensive tooling are imported from Knoll's factory in Pennsylvania. Some of Knoll's designers also work at the Pennsylvania plant and produce pieces decided on by marketing men.

Separately, there is a team of artist designers upon whom Knoll's reputation rests. They bring out 20 to 30 designs a month, of which only one or two are put into Knoll's line each year. What they create they do on their own: "No marketing man ever went to Mies and said design a chair in steel with leather cushions," Mr. Cadwallader says. . Mies van der Rohe's leather and steel Barcelona chair, designed in 1929, is still a top seller at $1,000. In France there that makes Mr. Cadwallader say with clenched fist, "I defy anyone to prove that," while Yves Vidal claims that a leather sols at Knoll costs no more than a leather sols at the Faulouing St.-Antoine, Paris's version of Grand Rapids. Knoll protects its designs—created by artists of all nationalities from Italian to Japanese to American to French-with

are complaints that Knoll furniture is too expensive, a criticism patents that last only 15 years and with tooling that is too expensive to imitate easily. If Knoll puts out classic, safe furniture that guarantees status and taste, it has recently come under attack for being too classical. The movement among more avant-garde tastes is to have no furniture at all and to sit on the floor. President Robert Cadwallader says Knoll has a few avant-garde ideas of its own that will come out in about two years, and in the meantime he's not worried:
